while the orixás "partake" of a special sacrifice offered to them. Her hair is cut off, her head shaved,[1] and dots and circles are painted in white upon the crown, forehead, and cheeks. The initiate then takes on obí in her hand, the atabaques begin to beat an invocation to her orixá, and she dances the special dance sacred to him until he "arrives in her head" and she experiences once more the estado de santo. The yaubá is then escorted from the pegi to the camarinha, where she remains for sixteen days before participating in her first public ceremony, whence she returns to the camarinha for a period of six months to a year, to be taught the various rituals of the cult, the songs, and, to some extent at least, an African language. Meanwhile, she is subject to certain food and other taboos.

To verify her acceptance by the orixá, a filha may be required to undergo without evidence of bodily harm an ordeal, such as swallowing lighted candlewicks soaked in azeite de dendê, thrusting her hands into boiling palm oil, chewing the leaves of the urtiga (Brazilian thistle), or submitting, on bended knee, to being beaten about the neck and arms with a sprig of the thorny cansanção.

Throughout her life the new filha de santo, in addition to submitting to the "manifestations" of her orixá, must perform on occasion certain ritualistic acts, rigorously observe certain food, drink, and sex taboos, and wear a special costume on ceremonial occasions and "days of obligation" (Fridays especially). On her death this costume, together with the other objects of cult worship belonging to her, are taken and dropped into the sea, "to be carried by the waves back to Africa."

Upon being "made," the filha de santo acquires a guia

As a Bahian white said, "When a black man puts on a tie and shoes and learns to read and write, he loses interest in the candomblé. There are really two civilizations at Bahia, ours and the African. When a black begins seriously to take on our customs, he seldom spends any more time at candomblés." A prominent mulatto educator remarked, "I've never been to a fetish cult. I have no interest in them." A Negro laborer admitted that he used to go to such ceremonies, "but no more; I've given all that up now." The young nephew of a prominent babalaô said, "All this low stuff ought to be done away with. It's a sign of a very backward people. It has even disappeared in Africa. The English came into Lagos and brought modern civilization. Only in Bahia do these old customs hang on."

Indicative of the disintegrating state of the fetish world is the continuous and, at times, acute jealousy among the leaders and members of its more orthodox centers. In a given seita one hears much critical gossip regarding the practices of some other center. It is accused of forsaking the "true" African tradition and of inadequately interpreting mystical experiences. As the number of Africanos decreases, competition between the seitas for their allegiance is naturally increasing.

Among the Negroes who still identify themselves with the cult, the past tends to be romanticized, and the prestige of the "old Africans," like Bambuxê, Adeta, Iyalode Erelu, and others, to be constantly enhanced. Similarly, the prestige of the older cult figures who are still living—the babalaô Martiniano, mãe de santo Anninha,[11] and the aged Maria Bádá, [11] Since this was written, mãe de santo Anninha has died. Of her funeral, the Estado da Bahia (January 5, 1938) said: "The crowd of people who accompanied the body to Quinta dos Lazaros Cemetery was one of the largest ever seen in Bahia and recalls the funeral for Pae Adão in Recife. More than all of whom represent the African tradition in its "purest" form—is, throughout the fetish world, very great."

two thousand persons were present, including members of the Irmandade of Rosario Church, dressed in their robes. The coffin, which was, in keeping with Anninha's request, quite modest, had over it the robe she had worn as a member of this Irmandade of which she was so proud, and was carried on the shoulders of the Brothers of Nossa Senhora do Rosario and of São Benedicto. The crowd of mourners blocked traffic in Rua Dr. Seabra for more than half an hour. Some filhas de santo wept unceasingly. Others related the virtues of the kind Anninha.

"When the coffin, carried by pious hands, entered the large gate of the cemetery, the atabaques broke out into African rhythms, while sad voices rose in the African songs of the seita to which the illustrious mãe de santo belonged.

"In the chapel of the cemetery, Canon Assis Curvello repeated the encommendação, and her body was laid away in a recently opened crypt.

"Then several orators spoke, among them Snr. Alvaro MacDowell de Oliveira in the name of the União das Seitas Afro-Brasileiras da Bahia, the journalist Edison Carneiro, and representatives of the Centro Cruz Santa do Aché de Okô Afonjá and of the Irmandade of Rosario Church. When the ceremony was over, two omnibuses carried a large number of the friends of Anninha to São Gonçalo do Retiro, where they took part in the preparatory ritual for the African funeral ceremony of Axèxé, to be held seven days after the death of the beloved leader of the terreiro of Aché de Okô Afonjá. This ceremony will consist of rites for the eternal peace of the dead mãe de santo and will be participated in by ogans, filhas de santo, paes de santo, and other friends of the deceased."

" This chapter is primarily based upon the author's personal experience as a visitor at numerous ceremonies in eighteen seitas at Bahia and as a participant over a period of several months as an ogan in the candomblé of Pae Procopio in Matatú.
